

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electrical coil, particularly a gradient coil for a magnetic resonance apparatus, contains at least one electrical conductor, a carrier structure, at least one component of a cooling device and a heat insulator, which is arranged for at least one section of the conductor between the conductor and the carrier structure.